Management Priority Updates: Discussion Questions

Category Management

1. As we recruit Category Managers, what are the key skills and competencies necessary for success? What skills are needed for category teams? Where should the teams focus their efforts during the first three-six months?
2. Are there companies that conduct category management well? Do you have specific POCs we can chat with, especially regarding the IT category?
3. How do we institutionalize category management beyond any single Administration?
4. How do we help our workforce learn and prepare for category management?
5. What suggestions would you have for helping to drive behavioral changes across a large, fragmented organizational structure?
6. How do we manage expectations, given this has taken many smaller entities, such as the UK, over five years to achieve 75% of “spend under management?”

Employee Engagement: Discussion Questions

Discussion Questions

- How can Education bridge the dichotomy of perceptions about senior leadership and first line supervisors?
- Is there a way to work with senior managers and first line supervisors to integrate engagement activities into their day-to-day operations instead of seeing it as a service provided by HR?
- How can Education persuade managers to believe that employee satisfaction and motivation are effective business tools instead of yet another burden on management? If so, what tools or strategies were most successful in making the case for employee satisfaction and engagement?
