

As a taxpayer and provider of information to researchers, please, please, please do not tamper with the open access policy. I see everyday the need for access to published research that will aid US citizens and citizens of the world. The giant publishers have selected a business model that serves only them based on my taxes. We do not need to fund their poor business model. We taxpayers are entitled to access to research published from our tax supported grants. This makes no sense except as another example of lobbyists determining who gets access to our taxes. The public access policy is one of the best pieces of legislation I have seen. Please do not tamper with it.
