To Whomever This May Concern,

Copyright infringement is rampant. Pirating of other people's materials is at an all-time high. Companies are selling our work and either giving us NOTHING or fractions of a penny. This needs to stop.

Better controls over who can sell our music need to be in place. I should be able to authorize who can sell my materials. This includes my original music compositions, lyrics, and arrangements. This being the age of the internet, there should be an easier way for our materials to be authorized by us composers and this official authorization to be centralized and immediately available to us as well as the companies who sell our music and to the general public.

If you can find a way to make this happen, the world of creative musicians will be grateful.

Can you do it?

Thank you,
